

Open Gates - 2419 Broadway

Completed in 1891 and designed by architects McKim, Mead & White. Built for banker and railroad president George Sealy and his wife Magnolia Willis, this grand residence withstood the 1900 Storm, and is one of Galveston's most iconic homes. Renowned architect Nicholas Clayton did a stable addition in 1892. Today it is owned by the University of Texas Medical Branch and used as a teleconference center.

Image courtesy of Rosenberg Library, Galveston, Texas AW - 5b from Artwork of Galveston.