

Rosenberg Library Announces Museum Book Club Fall Selection

Rosenberg Library is pleased to announce its selection for the Fall 2016 Museum Club series: The Forgers: A Novel by award-winning author Bradford Morrow. The Forgers is a literary thriller which explores the dark side of the rare book world. It will appeal to mystery fans and book lovers alike.

ABOUT THE BOOK

The novel begins with the murder of rare book collector Adam Diehl. Diehl is found beaten in his home with his collection of valuable books and manuscripts vandalized. The case grows cold as the police are unable to identify solid suspects or even a plausible motive for the crime.

The shadowy main character — a reformed forger of rare manuscripts — narrates the story. Readers are provided with subtle clues to help unravel the mystery, but there is an unexpected twist at the end of the book. Morrow tells the tale in a Sherlock Holmes-inspired fashion, making The Forgers a real page-turner.

ABOUT THE AUTHOR

Bradford Morrow grew up in Denver, Colorado but studied and worked in Honduras, Italy, and France during his youth. After earning degrees from the University of Colorado and from Yale University, he worked as a bookseller in California for several years. Morrow joined the faculty of Bard College in New York in 1990 and founded the literary journal Conjunctions. He also began writing novels.

Among other accolades, Morrow has won a Guggenheim Fellowship in fiction and the O. Henry Prize for short stories.

FROM THE PERMANENT COLLECTION

Rosenberg Library preserves an impressive array of rare books and early manuscripts in its Special Collections. Select items from the Rare Book Collection will be displayed and discussed at the Fall 2016 Museum Book Club programs.
