1. What do you think drew artist Andrew Wyeth to the Kuerners?
Why do you think he found them an inspiration for his work?
2. Do you think Karl loved his wife and their children?
Did you feel any sympathy toward him?
3. How might Anna's mental problems be addressed differently today than during her lifetime?
Do you think she would have been better off without Karl in her life?
4. How would you have coped with having parents like the Kuerners?
Why do you think Karl was kinder toward Andrew Wyeth than to his own children?
5. Did you have questions that were left unanswered at the book's conclusion?
Are there other aspects of the story that you wish the author would have addressed?
